Rev. T. Horwood on Sunday Cinemas

TILT AT MR. MACLAREN

(To the Editor of the "Sentinel") SIR,—Re Sunday cinema petition, I should imagine that most adherents and councillors who have read Clause 2 of the petition published in the "Sentinel" on Monday, and sent to the Town Clerk, were somewhat taken aback at the belated cry that they, the Free Churches, were not represented on the General Purposes sub-committee set up to discuss alternative schemes for Sunday entertainment.

In their letter addressed to members of the Council just previous to the last Council meeting they appealed to them to turn down my notice of motion on the grounds that, to quote their own words, "they, the Free Churches, were not represented on the General Purposes sub-committee, together with other representative persons, had not completed their findings."

No Free Churches

There was then no protest that they were not represented on that the Rev. R. G. Mace would not be regarded by them as their representative, although in correspondence he makes it abundantly clear that he had full knowledge of his presence at the meetings and the progress of the deliberations.

Are we then to conclude that they were their representative so long as the committee pursued their decision, but not when their findings were contrary to their wishes. It is surely very difficult to understand the words "representative persons were discussing a policy, which was not discussed by the Rev. R. G. Mace was one, but he became a supporter of it, and they had finished. Obviously such quibbles must surely be regarded as a desperate ploy unworthy of ministers of religion.

The Free Churches were asked to send a representative to address the Council on Sunday cinemas on May 21st last, and the Town Clerk was notified that they had appointed the Rev. C. H. Mace as their representative for this purpose.

GOOD WORK OF CITIZENS' ADVICE BUREAU

Throughout the whole of the country during this week, attention is being called to the valuable work carried out by the Citizens' Advice Bureau.

There are few districts better served by Citizens' Advice Bureaux than North Staffordshire, where they are under the direction of the Stoke-on-Trent and District Social Service Emergency Council, whose annual report appeared in the Sentinel a few days ago.

In the City of Stoke-on-Trent there are at present nine Bureaux and one at Newcastle. These Bureaux have, in most cases, been provided by the Local Authorities. Friendly contacts have been established with these authorities and with other statutory and voluntary bodies, which have proved great assistance to the Bureaux in solving the many and varied problems which have been brought to their notice.

During the past year, nearly 18,000 cases were satisfactorily dealt with in the City and Newcastle area, an average of about 50 a week, and the number of inquiries is steadily increasing. Clothes, food and fuel rationing have brought thousands of people to the Bureaux for advice and information.

The Cross Postal Message Scheme, by which messages can be exchanged with relatives and friends in enemy-occupied countries, is being increasingly used. The Bureaux have been forward by the local Bureaux during the past year, and 4,000 messages have been received. Wartime problems are many, but the existence of the Bureaux ensures that friendly sympathetic and reliable help is available for all.

The workers give their services voluntarily and no charge is made for information and advice. Expenses of the Bureaux are met partly from private donations and partly from the Ministry of Health, partly from local funds and partly from Government grants.

The following is the list of Bureaux in Stoke-on-Trent premises by the Local Authorities. Friendly contacts have been established with these authorities and with other statutory and voluntary bodies, which have proved great assistance to the Bureaux in solving the many and varied problems which have been brought to their notice.

MORALE IN INDUSTRY OUTPUT AND LOYALTY

Mr. D. Cleghorn Thomson, M.A., gave the second in his course of six Oxford University extension lectures in the Court House, Newcastle, on the general title was "Morale in Industry," and the points dealt with included incentive to output and loyalty, the use of radio, and staff publications for an extension of managerial personnel.

The lecturer stressed that in this problem of morale many of the general ideas were "Morale in Industry," and the points dealt with included incentive to output and loyalty, the use of radio, and staff publications for an extension of managerial personnel.

INCENTIVES

The Chief Labour Officer of the War Office, Mr. J. G. Mace, is urging that "ideals which envisage a more co-operative industrial relationship are being converted into policy to shape them into methods of work and men to their support."

A survey was then given of the work of the War Office, which is organized labour to the economic of wages, payment of overtime, and the necessary safeguards and the inevitable dangers were pointed out.

EXPERIMENTS

The lecturer then turned to incentives to loyalty and the promotion of staff good will. He pointed out that the necessary safeguards and the inevitable dangers were pointed out.
